Introduction

West New Jersey was established in an effort to create a self-contained Quaker Colony, in America. Archibald Silver, Senior first arrived in West New Jersey, in 1685. He was born in Scotland. He purchased 100 acres of land, on 10 October 1686, from Edward Byllinge, Governor of the Province of West Jersey. He had two brothers, James and John, and two sisters, Anne and Jane, who also came to the province. There are no records that indicate that they travelled together from Scotland. But various deeds and official court records indicate their probable connection to each other.

Archibald Silver, Senior married Christian Cheyne sometime before 7 June 1693, in Matocopine, West New Jersey. This date is confirmed in a deed that references they were married at the time Christian was given her 30 acres of land laid out as headlands, for being the late servant of George Keith. She was also from Scotland and was an indentured servant who was imported into East New Jersey by the aforesaid, George Keith. She arrived in East New Jersey in 1685.

George Keith was a Scottish born missionary and was educated at the University of Aberdeen. He joined the Quakers in the 1660s and was a leader of the movement alongside George Fox, William Penn, and Robert Barclay. He was appointed by Robert Barclay, the absentee Governor of the Province of East Jersey, to be the Surveyor-General of the East Jersey in 1686. He is credited for making the first survey establishing the border between West Jersey and East Jersey. By 1691, he broke with the Philadelphia Friends Yearly Meeting, because he felt the Quakers had strayed too far away from the established Christian orthodoxy. He had many followers who were called Keithians. In 1693, he published an article cautioning Friends to not buy or keep slaves. Upon his return to England in 1694, he was disowned by the London Yearly Meeting. He eventually served as a rector of the Anglican Church, in Edburton, Sussex, England. It is very possible that his breaking with the Quakers, had a strong influence over Christian Cheyne and members of the Silver family. Only James Silver, appears to have been a member of the Quakers. No Friends meeting records could be found for other members of the affiliated Silver clan. They had their son, Archibald Silver, II, about 1696, in West New Jersey.

An abstract of the will of Archibald Silver, Senior, can be found below. He died about June 1703 without a will, in Manneton Creek, Salem County, West Jersey. Joseph Burgin was granted permission to be the administrator on the estate. He was married to Jane Silver, who may have been Archibald's sister or possibly a near relative. There are no records for when Christian Silver passed. Typically, the wife was named the executrix of the will. I can only presume she was already deceased. Archibald Silver, II, was only seven years old when his father died. The mystery is who raised him and where. It is possible that Jane Silver and her husband Joseph Burgin raised him in Salem County, West New Jersey.

Joseph Burgin died sometime in 1708, in Salem County, West Jersey. An inventory of his personal estate was made on 19 July 1708. It was noted that debts were due to Archibald Silver, Senior's children, in the sum of £100.15.1. His wife Jane is listed as the executrix for the will. Archibald Silver, II would have been about 12 years old, at the time of Joseph Burgin's death.

How or if Archibald Silver, II received his legacy is unknown. It appears his father and extended family in Salem County, New Jersey, were not members of the Salem Friends Monthly Meeting. By 1717, Archibald Silver, II is found to be a member of this meeting and remained a Quaker for the rest of his life.

A brief explanation of Quaker records:

Certificate of removal- if a person or family planned to move to another town or state, they would need to request a certificate of removal from their existing meeting. Friends from the old meeting would vouch for an individual's character and marital status.

Received on Certificate- upon arrival at their new meeting, an individual would present their certificate, in order to be received.

Marriage:

First intentions- the couple would present themselves to the Men's and Women's Monthly meetings and declare their intention of marriage. Friends would be assigned to make orderly inquiry to determine if the couple were free to get married.

Second intentions – the couple would present themselves to a second meeting to declare their intentions of marriage. Upon the woman's parents consent for her marriage and the results of the inquiry reported back to the monthly meeting, a couple would then be given the liberty to accomplish their intentions according to the good order of Friends.

Marriage observation by appointed Friends- Friends would be appointed by the meeting to inspect & observe the management & behavior of such as are present, after the consummation of the marriage. In particular they would report back to the next meeting that no indecent or disorderly behavior was allowed by those present at the wedding.
